

Emma Lloyd

Motivational Counsellor and Vocational Case Manager, Surrey

Emma is a Rehabilitation Counsellor who has extensive knowledge of working within a variety of vocational settings including statutory insurance, social care, employment services, training and independent practice. Emma is also highly skilled in providing coaching, counselling, canvassing and job seeking services to people returning to the workforce and is committed to establishing and maintaining a positive focus on vocational rehabilitation. This experience enables Emma to provide a high quality service across a diverse range of cultural, socio-economic and educational backgrounds.

Key Skills

Emma places a keen focus on maintaining a collaborative approach to rehabilitation by encouraging open and transparent channels of communication and quickly developing rapport between all parties. Emma is also highly passionate about her role within the recovery process and this dedication to achieving positive and sustainable outcomes supports an environment of mutual trust and respect. Emma emphasises the need to listen to the needs of each client and tailor her actions to suit their individual requirements. This enables her to demonstrate her commitment to each party and secure their commitment to the process in return.

Expertise

- Facilitating complex vocational assessments and identifying barriers to recovery.
- Developing effective interventions and implementing appropriate solutions.
- Providing counselling and support to promote rapid and sustainable outcomes.
- Improving mental health and wellbeing and enhancing motivation and self esteem.
- Working with clients who have an intellectual or physical disability.
- Expertise in stress management, employee assistance counselling and coaching.
- Post Graduate qualifications in vocational rehabilitation and counselling.
- Professional qualifications in disability work, coaching, weight management and fitness.